

QRZ.COM

What is it, and how can I get the most from it?

By Dave Slotter, W3DJS

QRZ

- ◇ QRZ is “Q” code for “Who is calling me?”
- ◇ First created in 1992 by Fred Lloyd, AA7BQ
- ◇ Houses nearly every callsign in the world (FCC + Foreign)
- ◇ Originally a database on tape, then on a CD, then converted to website.
- ◇ Likewise, the QRZ.com site’s primary function is to look up a person from a callsign.
 - ◇ Allows lookup using:
 - ◇ Callsign
 - ◇ Name/Address
 - ◇ Biography
 - ◇ County
 - ◇ Grid
 - ◇ DXCC

"VIA QSL MGR" - QSL Managers

Sponsored by WINQSL

You heard that rare DX station tell the pile-up that cards are being accepted by his QSL Manager, but the QSB was coming in and you didn't quite catch that callsign. No fear! QRZ is here! The QRZ QSL database contains manager references to over 68,000 DX callsigns. Enjoy and Good DX Hunting!

DX Callsign:

This search page accepts partial callsigns too! For example, to find all QSL managers for 4U0 callsigns, you can simply enter '4U0' in the callsign box. The system will also search for the managers as well - just type in the manager's callsign and see how many stations he QSL's for.

Updates

Please email all QSL route or manager updates to DF6EX

Our special thanks to Manfred Meier, DF6EX, for providing the QSL Manager database.

QSL Bureaus and Services

Sometimes, when it's tough to locate a direct address or a QSL Manager for a DX station, a "bureau" or "service" can be used instead. Depending on the bureau or service, there will likely be some restrictions and/or costs involved with using it. Although typically slower than QSL'ing direct, the use of bureaus and services will often offer a greater chance of getting your hands on that elusive QSL card!

About QRZ

QRZ was founded in 1992 by Fred Lloyd, AA7BQ as a spinoff of what was once called the "Callsign Project", a cooperative effort designed to obtain and distribute FCC database tapes. The "Callsign Project" was born on the internet newsgroup rec.ham-radio (later rec.radio.amateur.misc), and it's initial sponsor was Rusty, Carruth, N7IKQ, who eventually turned it over to Fred when he became unable to continue the effort.

The "project" part of the callsign project consisted of obtaining the FCC data tapes and then making copies of it for distribution to other interested parties. Fred's first experience with the callsign project was largely uneventful since the total distribution consisted only of about 40 copies. At the time, each person requesting a copy of the database would send the Fred a blank tape along with $20 in an SASE. The $20 was to help to recover the cost of obtaining the data from the FCC, which at the time cost over $700 for the two large 9-track (12-inch) mainframe tape reels.

Soon, six months had gone by and again it became necessary to obtain a fresh set of FCC tapes. Tired of spending his spare time making tape copies, Fred began to wonder about CDROM - a new but emerging universal format. It didn't really seem possible since the cost of mastering a CDROM (about $2500) was prohibitive given the small number of potential internet customers from past experience.

Thinking 'outside the box', Fred began wondering if perhaps there might be an existing shareware CDROM already in publication that possibly had enough unused or spare space to accomodate the callsign data. At the time, the total size of the FCC database was only about 50 megabytes compressed, so it sounded like there might be a possibility.

With this in mind, Fred contacted a well known CDROM shareware publisher, Bob Bruce at the now defunct Walnut Creek CDROM, and popped the question: "Do you think you might have an existing CD with 50MB of free space available?". To Fred's surprise, Bob replied with "Why don't we just put together a Ham Radio CDROM? Just send us the material and we'll press it." With this simple exchange on the phone, Fred started working on his first CDROM project. Shortly thereafter Fred decided on using the ham radio shorthand term QRZ as a name for the new product. It was short, catchy, and 100 percent ham radio!

Suddenly, worrying about how to keep the data as small as possible to fit on a shareware CDROM gave way to another, unexpectd problem: How were we going go fill up a 650 MB disc? Next, with the help of John Moore, NJ7E, a DOS-Based lookup program was developed (in about a week) and the QRZ database format was created.
